

Rockefeller Partners created this modern beach 4,500 Square feet house on the Strand in Manhattan Beach.

This particular client has never lived more than a few blocks away from the beach. His love of Balinese architecture challenged Rockefeller Partners to create a modern, Californian interpretation.

The three-story home places the public spaces on the highest floor, affording them the best views.

Private spaces are placed on the middle floor, and the Ground floor houses the beach room and family room that is accessible to the walkway street, just steps away from the beach.

This highly populated beach community in Manhattan Beach offers a covered parking area, a luxury in such a

By highlighting the home's safety, privacy and exclusivity, the space appears, applying its serene design, perceived by its Open-plan, hand-crafted living and dining areas with a view of the ocean and city skyline.

After the first half of the glass, California's first and the only glass rail and staircase

