

Netherland based Next Architects had the tedious task of integrating a bridge transporting motor-vehicle traffic through the ecological zone of the Glanerbeek .

The focus was the preservation of the continuity for both the green landscape and the flow of vehicular circulation. Above the brook the bridge transforms according to visual and ecological demands, with a creative use of building material that helped the bridge to blend in.

© 2008 Next Architects. All rights reserved. This document is the property of Next Architects and is not to be distributed, copied, or reproduced without the written permission of Next Architects.

© 2008 Next Architects. All rights reserved. This image is a work of Next Architects and is not to be reproduced without the written permission of Next Architects.