

When owners Geoffrey Moore and Genie Gable commissioned Architects Shubin +

Donaldson to design this three-level Residence located in 'The Riviera' area of Santa-Barbara in California, they had searched for more than a year to find a site that met their exacting and almost contradictory requirements.

Geoffrey Moore is an international businessman and writer who, when not traveling, splits his work time between a home office in Santa Barbara and a corporate office 85 miles south in Santa Monica. He wanted a shaded, quiet office space filled with cutting-edge technology for global communication where he could write without distraction. His wife is the principal of Genie Gable Interior Design, and a graduate of the Professional Design Program at UCLA. She sought sun-filled spaces with unimpeded views of the nearby Pacific Ocean and, at night, the city lights of Santa Barbara.

Although the Santa Barbara Riviera Residence is a modern structure, it has a traditional feel. The building is set against a clear blue sky. In the foreground, there is a paved walkway leading to the entrance, flanked by young trees and a low wall with small plants.

the site plan for the

the site plan for the

Looking from the city and

Looking from the city and

~~Santa Barbara Riviera Residence Credits: Kelly Kish, Allison White, Josh Blumer, Alan~~
~~Shubin + Donaldson - Santa Barbara Riviera Residence Credits: Kelly Kish, Allison White, Josh Blumer, Alan~~
~~Shubin + Donaldson - Santa Barbara Riviera Residence Credits: Kelly Kish, Allison White, Josh Blumer, Alan~~