

Seattle based Vandeventer + Carlander Architects designed this attractive residence on a steep slope corner lot within a prestigious neighborhood. Existing conditions included neighbors to the west and north, a busy arterial below, and a residential street to the east. Although the existing residence got demolished, the site requirements have established the vertical datum to which the new design responds.

Image description: A photograph of the Mad Park Residence, a modern house with a mix of materials including copper, wood, and glass. The house is surrounded by lush greenery and a concrete walkway leads to the entrance.

Principal of Corcoran is at top. This two-story volume is a column defined by its eaves

From the main level, the view captures the vertical flow of light-filled gallery, office spaces, and

