

Nestled into a slope on the southern shore of Lake Simcoe, this one room sleeping cabin is a simple but sophisticated Canadian bunkie, evoking the “primitive hut” of branches constructed in the wilderness.

The clients desired a private retreat from the main cottage further up the hill that would also enhance their enjoyment of the surrounding landscape in a location previously used to watch the sunset.

© Taylor_Smyth architects. All rights reserved. This image is for informational purposes only and does not constitute an offer or solicitation of any financial product or service. Please contact your financial advisor for more information.

any large windows and the use of natural materials like wood and stone to create a warm and inviting atmosphere.

Copyright © 2010 Taylor Smyth Architects. All rights reserved. No part of this document may be reproduced without the prior written permission of Taylor Smyth Architects.

