

Scientists from around the world gather to help advance the study of the oceans, earth, and marine life sciences at this oceanfront conference center located at the Scripps Institution of Oceanography in La Jolla, California.

The project includes an approximately 300-person flexible auditorium space, four oceanfront meeting rooms of varying sizes, a graduate student lounge, catering kitchen and restaurant.

Robert Paine Scripps Forum For Science, Society and the Environment

© 2009 Safdie Rabines Architects. All rights reserved. No part of this publication may be reproduced, stored in a retrieval system, or transmitted, in any form or by any means, electronic, mechanical, photocopying, recording, or by any information storage and retrieval system, without the prior written permission of Safdie Rabines Architects.

Architectural design by Safdie Rabines Architects, Robert Paine Scripps Forum For Science, Society and the Environment